

Monday, November 13, 2006

sunday travel

Travel Extras, 11/12

Article Last Updated:11/11/2006 11:52:08 PM MST

GEARING UP

Forget "Survivor" or "The Amazing Race." If you want to see someone dodge repeated hurdles and overcome death-defying challenges, witness a parent trying to catch a flight while racing three kids under the age of 7 through a jam-packed airport with multiple pieces of luggage, including a car seat or two. Thank heavens someone out there is trying to come up with ways to help, such as the gogo Kidz Travelmate, what is essentially a 5 lb. mini dolly, to which you strap a car seat, to which you strap your kid, and then go, go, go. You can wheel the kid through the airport on the contraption and either fold the Travelmate up to its 5-by-16-by-28-inch size and check it with the car seat or take it all the way through security and carry it on if you need the seat on the plane. Check website for types of seats. | $89, gogobabyz.com

